a children's novel by the Italian author Edmondo De Amicis who was a novelist, journalist, short story writer, and poet. The novel is his best-known work to this day, having been inspired by his own children, Furio and Ugo, who had been schoolboys at the time it is set. During the Italian Unification and includes several patriotic themes. It was issued by Treves on October 18, 1886, the first day of school in Italy, and rose to immediate success through its investigation of social issues such as poverty. The novel shows the influence of left-wing ideologies on De Amicis' work. He was later to join the Italian Socialist Party because of this. The book remained influential and the staple of many textbooks in countries of the Eastern Bloc. On the other hand, the book's strong evocation of Italian nationalism and patriotism also made it very welcome in Fascist Italy. The novel is written in a diary form as told by Enrico Bottini, an 11-year-old primary school student in Turin with an upper-class background who is surrounded by classmates of working-class origin. The entire chronological setting corresponds to the third grade season of 1881-82. Enrico says it has been four years since the death of Victor Emmanuel II, King of Italy, and the succession by Umberto I, and also tells about the death of Giuseppe Garibaldi, which happened in 1882. Enrico's parents and older sister, Silvia, interact with him as written in his diary, as well as his teacher who assigns him with homework that deals with several different stories of children throughout the Italian states who should be seen as role models. These stories are then given in the book as Enrico comes upon reading them. Every story revolves around a different moral value, the most prominent of which are helping those in need, having great love and respect for family and friends, and patriotism. These are called the monthly stories and appear at the end of every school month.

From its physical attributes to its power as a literary metaphor to its religious significance and beyond, here is the captivating story of the role of the heart in our lives and culture. There is a universal fascination with the human heart. Every age and civilization has developed theories and beliefs about it, which overlap, support, and sometimes undermine one another. It is celebrated as the home of faith, love, and courage, the seat of the soul. No other organ has inspired so many poets, writers, painters, and religious thinkers, and references to it abound in advertising, cultural kitsch, song lyrics, and everyday language and imagery, shedding light on the heart's many mysteries and meanings. The chapters in the book of the heart explore the physical heart, a natural history of the heart, its strengths and weaknesses, the anatomy of the human heart, the religious heart, the bleeding heart, the sacrificial heart, the heart's place in cannibalism, and other rituals. The heart in art, visual depictions of the heart from classical art to tattoos, fruits, and other symbols of the heart, the written heart, poetry, and song, romantic love, myths, and legends. The novel is filled with fascinating tidbits; for instance, a giraffe requires a heart weighing sixty-six pounds to pump blood up its neck, and is graced with charming illustrations.
